Former Matteson Teacher Gored To Death By Bull

Fred Lustfeldt, 67 retired principal of the Matteson public school, was gored to death Tuesday by a Holstein bull on his 20 acre farm on Sauk trail, Rich-ton Park, five miles west of Chicago Heights.

The bull also tried to attack Lustfeldt's son Raymond of Crete, and it was because of this that Lustfeldt's death was discovered. Lustfeldt had gone to the farm because of the illness of his caretaker, Fred Clausen, and his son followed later.

Failing to find Lustfeldt in the barn, the son went to the pasture and the bull chased him. William Weishaar and other neighboring farmers drove the bull into the barn and then found Lustfeldt dead, gored thru the heart, his clothing ripped from his body. Lustfeldt lived at 7th and Locust Sts., in Matteson and headed the school there from 1921 to 1934.

TO DISCUSS MODERN MILKING METHODS

During the six thousand years that cows have been milked, men and women have puzzled their minds for satisfactory explanations of how a cow manufactures her milk, how she "holds it up" and how she "lets it down."

Modern science and research have at last found the answers and with them has come a better knowledge of how to get the most milk from a cow and how to maintain her udder in the most healthful condition, whether she is milked by hand or with a machine.

How to apply this knowledge for Money Making Milking results will be shown by full color movies, talks and demonstrations at a dairy meeting to be held at 8:00 pm. at Tinley Park school gym, Tinley Park on Wednesday evening, Feb. 13. This free meeting is sponsored by Henry J. Bettenhausen, L. J. TINLEY LEGION AUXILIARY CELEBRATE 15th BIRTHDAY

The ladies of Tinley Park Unit 615 of the American Legion Auxiliary celebrated their fifteenth birthday by initiating their new members last Thursday, January 31. The ceremonies were held in the social room of the Methodist Church which had been attractively decorated in the Auxiliary's colors of blue, gold and white.

The meeting was opened by Mrs. Gertrude Jacobs, president, and the colors were presented by Mayme Brandau, sergeant at arms, and color guards Frances Ceithaml and Edna Clark. The meeting was turned over to Frances Rowden who had been the first president of Tinley Park Unit and who was responsible for the organization and initiation one very cold winter night just fifteen years ago. Mrs. Rowden asked the sergeant at arms to present the fourteen members who were to be initiated that night: Jean Aden, Elizabeth, Barbara Barry, Ruth Bettenhausen, Anna Dahl, Helen Kohl, Ethelyn Mehren, Josephine Smith, Josephine Schmiedeknecht, Caroline Roberts, Lucille Uthe, Betty Wagner, Mary Wagner and Anna Wagner. Due to illness Marie Bettenhausen, Mrs. Eleanor Bettenhausen, Freida Hollwedel, Edna Hollwedel, Gloria Medrow, Mary Parenti, Lois Ruppert and Edna Schneider were not able to be present for their initiation.

Mrs. Rowden explained the meaning of membership in the Auxiliary, pointing out that Freedom, Justice, Democracy and Loyalty were its foundation stones. She asked Mrs. Ruth Freitag to instruct the ladies in Justice which she did by the illustration of our flower, the poppy, recalling to us the sacrifice for this Justice that has forever stained the poppy with the blood of mankind. Mrs. Freitag presented each one with a copy of the Auxiliary's by-laws and standing rules and then called upon Mrs. Erna Wallin to instruct them in Freedom.

Mrs. Wallin presented each member with a miniature flag, pointing out as she did so that this symbol would keep us ever mindful of the Freedom so recently won again and our obligation of keeping it safe. Mrs. Dena Hansen then spoke to the candidates concerning Democracy and presented each of them with an Auxiliary pin after which the instruction on Loyalty was read by Mrs. Rowden.

All the lights in the room were then turned off, except for one of golden hue outlining the American Legion Auxiliary Emblem whereupon the Chaplain, Mrs. Trudy Swisher, read the invocation and then explained the meaning of the emblem to the candidates. Mrs. W. Glenn Suthers came forward to administer the final portion of the initiation ceremonies: The Preamble to the Constitution of the American Legion Auxiliary. Mrs. Suthers is the foster mother of Tinley Park Unit, having been District Director at the time of the unit's inception. She presided at the original initiation and installation of officers. We were honored to have Mrs. Suthers with us as she epitomizes the foundation of the Auxiliary, having served in many state and national offices.

At the close of these ceremonies, the new members were asked to sign the register of members, a book used only at initiations and were then conducted to seats of honor.

Mrs. Georgene Mager then read the roll of charter members and a clever rhyme called "The Faithful Few." Mrs. Swisher gave a delightfully humorous history of the fifteen years of the unit, pointing up very cleverly the names and high spots of the years of

29 Head of Stock Perish In Homer Farm Fire

When Stuart Vanderbilt, well known Homer township farmer, living on Maple Road, snapped on a light switch in his barn about 5 o'clock Monday morning there was a flash and the interior of the large barn burst into flames almost simultaneously.

A call was put in at once for the New Lenox Community Vol. Fire Dept. and the Mokena and Ridgewood fire departments were summoned a few moments later. The flames spread so rapidly that only some horses were saved, but a herd of 29 head of stock fell prey to the flames. Grain, farm machinery and other live stock also burned. Adjoining buildings also caught fire. The three fire departments had a real tough job and it took hard work to save the farm home and other buildings.

It is estimated that the loss on live stock, equipment, buildings etc., runs to about $27,000.

The new concern will conduct a business for the purpose of buying, selling and trading tractors, farm machinery of all types, automobiles, trucks and electrical appliances. The corporation's attorney is Attorney Albert H. Krusemark, Jr. of Frankfort.

The concern named has erected a new building on the west side of Wolf Road at the south end of Mokena and expects to be operating in the very near future.

the past presidents who were the hostesses of the evening. Mrs. Frances Rowden, 1932 and 1933, Mrs. Margaret West, 1934; Mrs. Min Felton, 1935; Mrs. Trudy Swisher, 1936; Mrs. Ruth Freitag, 1937; Mrs. Mayme Brandau, 1938; Mrs. Viloa Carr, 1939; Mrs. Frances Ceithaml, 1940; Mrs. Myrtle Wolf, 1941; Mrs. Erna Wallin, 1942; Mrs. Marie Hagedorn, 1943, Mrs. Dena Hansen, 1944 and 1945.

Mrs. Suthers spoke to us on the "Auxiliary's Duties in the New Peace" explaining to us that even though our achievements in rehabilitation and child welfare and other programs must be carried on, we must also be the settling influence in the homes to which the veteran has dreamed of returning. But we must also learn to take our places ever increasingly in the plans of tomorrow. Two generations ago the women thought; the last generation planned; this generation must accomplish.

From among the sixty five ladies present, Mrs. Jacobs introduced Mrs. Eleanor Schroeder, Mrs. Mae Leech and Mrs. Elsie Parkins, all past 8th District Directors, Mrs. Lena Leitau, present 8th District Director and Mrs. Ethelyn Barry, past 5th District Director. We were also honored to have many friends from Matteson, Chicago Heights, Blue Island, Orland Park and one Legionnaire, a lovely lady.

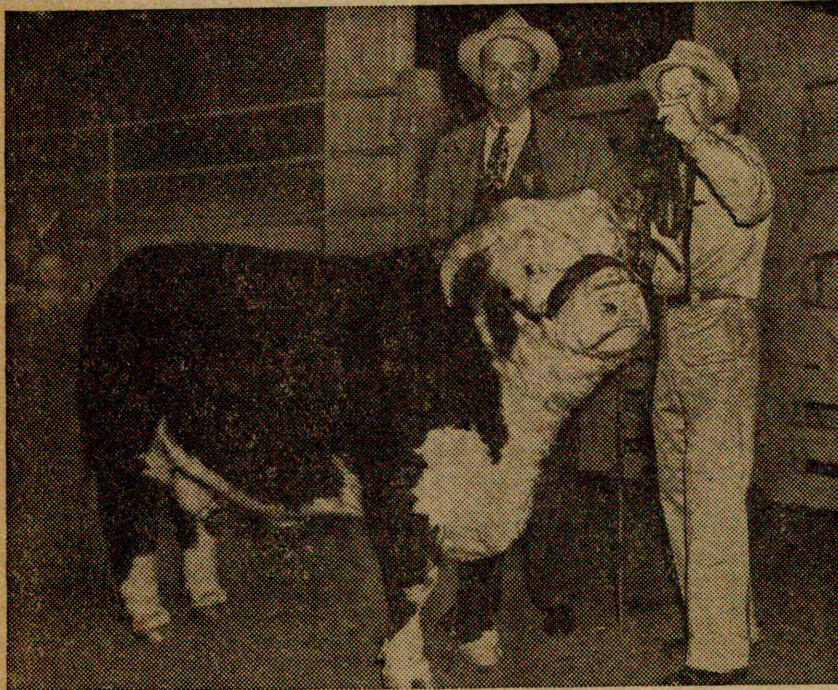

Mrs. Edith Baldwin favored us with some lovely piano selections and Mrs. Edna Clark gave two readings, "The One Legged Goose" and "William Did." Colors were retired, the meeting adjourned and the guests were invited to enjoy a delicious luncheon. Favors were paper hats, having either blue or gold brims with alternating blue or gold '15 on the white crown which was filled with candy and nuts. The tables were decorated with blue and gold crepe paper and lighted by blue and gold tapers.

While the guests were enjoying the refreshments, a rug woven by a veteran was awarded, the lucky lady being Mrs. Ethelyn Barry. The close of the eventful evening brought happy greetings and farewells and wishes that Tinley Park Unit can celebrate many more birthdays.

MUNITIONS TO JAPAN

WASHINGTON.—The Pearl Harbor investigating committee has now spent nearly three months digging into military - naval - political reasons why we were caught asleep on December 7, 1941. While this is important, all the facts show that Japan would have attacked anyway; if not at Pearl Harbor, at some other place, and if not on December 7, at some other time.

Meanwhile, we have seized various documents from the Japs, showing that this war was carefully built up over a period of years and that certain American munitions makers were either unsuspecting or deliberate Jap co-partners.

If we are to prevent war in the future—and that presumably is one motive of the Pearl Harbor committee—the manner in which American business aided the Japs to prepare for Pearl Harbor is important. We must build up machinery so this doesn't happen again.

MUNITIONS LOBBIES

One thing the Pearl Harbor committee might well investigate is the way lobbies developed in Washington to put pressure on the government to sell war goods to Japan. These lobbies, representing oil, gasoline, scrap iron, airplanes, machine tools, made a lot of headway with the army and navy, sometimes with the state department.

One man they never affected was Harold Ickes. As secretary of the interior he controls the export of helium gas, and at exactly the same month the above report was written, the Germans were trying to buy helium from the U. S. A. for their zeppelins.

The army, the navy and Secretary of State Hull gave their okay. But Ickes said no—unless American inspectors were stationed in Germany to see how the helium was used. Finally the question came up in cabinet meeting. Secretary Hull gave a long speech telling why it was perfectly safe to sell helium to Germany without inspection. As the vote went round the table, every cabinet member voted against Ickes.

But Ickes still said no. Under the law, the secretary of the interior has absolute control over the export of helium. No one can overrule him. So finally FDR turned to Ickes and said: "Well, Harold, you're the boss. You win."

VETERANS' PROBLEMS

Lt. Col. R. P. Bronson, chief of the contact and service branch of the Veterans' administration, blinked when he was handed a telegram from a distressed veteran the other day. It read:

"Assistance needed stop brother murdered here December 26 stop reply by wire."

Colonel Bronson instructed an aide to phone the veteran's home city and see that he was given immediate help. Then he continued to leaf through the daily file of pleas that come to his desk.

"It's all in a day's work," he said. "But I'll admit that one had me stumped for a while."

Wide and varied are the SOS appeals the Veterans' administration receives from men wearing the discharge insignia. They range from vets wanting to get traffic tickets "fixed" to those who want to adopt children, purchase new automobiles or get liquor licenses.

"We're the 'Little Mother' agency of the government," said the colonel, a two-fisted overseas veteran with a sense of humor and four battle stars on his campaign ribbons. "We do our best, but of course we can't please everybody. It would make it a lot easier on us if some of our correspondents realized that their off-the-track problems hinder the handling of thousands of legitimate requests from men seeking benefits under the G.I. Bill of Rights and so on. When they ask us to find them wives, that sort of stumps us."

The love interest is uppermost in unusual V.A. mail. However, a Maryland vet recently wanted help in getting his water main connected.

A West Virginian posed the following $64 question:

"Do you know of or can you find out about some government agency which can assist me in finding a wife? I am a veteran of two years and nine months service—age 39—and so far, for some unknown reason, I am unsuccessful in finding a bride. Hope to receive a favorable reply very soon."

CAPITAL CHAFF

Members of congress were not pleased by General Eisenhower's quick departure from the Library of Congress auditorium after he addressed them on demobilization. Admiral Nimitz had aides on hand to answer questions after he spoke, but Eisenhower ducked out right after reading his speech, leaving no one from the army to answer questions. . . . Al Marano, secretary to Congresswoman Clare Boothe Luce of Connecticut, has a new daughter. Her name—Clare.

A PEOPLE DISCIPLINED Temperance Lesson

LESSON TEXT: Numbers 14:11-24.
MEMORY SELECTION: For whom the Lord loveth he correcteth; even as a father the son in whom he delighteth.—Proverbs 13:24.

Instruction, training and culture, sometimes calling for the touch of judgment or punishment, that the lesson may be rightly learned—this is the meaning of discipline.

It is a good word and speaks of that which is much needed in a disordered and dissolute world.

Our lesson tells of God's plan for the discipline of the people of Israel in preparation for their entry into the Promised Land. They were not ready when God first brought them up to it, but through hard and trying experiences they learned. They did not believe God, so they had to learn the hard way.

One wonders whether we will be wiser than they. America is now in the awful grasp of a postwar wave of careless living, of moral disintegration and of awful dissipation. Alcoholic liquors flow in an uncontrolled flood of destruction. Where is the moral fiber that made America great?

I. There is a Limit to God's Patience (vv. 11, 12).

The background of our lesson is the report of the spies who were sent up into the land. All agreed that it was a good land, but 10 of them were afraid of its inhabitants. Two of them, Joshua and Caleb, urged the people to take God at his word and go up to possess the land. But the people rebelled and wanted to turn back to the fleshpots of Egypt.

God had been patient with the people, but the time had come when further patience ceased to be a virtue and would only be indulgence. Then judgment came—and fast!

There is a limit to God's patience with a sinful people. It is almost heartbreaking to think of the possibility that America may all too soon press its downward course to the point where God says, It is enough.

II. There is Power in Intercessory Prayer (vv. 13-19).

Moses stepped into the breach and made a mighty and moving plea for his people. He knew the power of intercession and called on God for mercy upon the people. He pointed out that the honor of the Lord was involved in bringing His people into the land. He recognized the guilt of the older members of the nation but asked for another chance for the children. He based his prayer on the known qualities of God, his justice and, above all, his mercy.

Does not this strongly suggest the importance of Christian people making their influence count in the solution of social problems? Prayer accomplishes more than this world has ever conceived to be possible. Praying people count with God, and hence they count in the affairs of men.

More Christian people ought to be deeply concerned about our country's liquor problem, and all the physical, moral, social, political and spiritual ills which are caused by drink.

III. There is Punishment for Unbelief (vv. 20-23).

The pardon of God for the people as a whole did not overlook or wink at the awful unbelief of those who had rebelled against God.

He had not left them without a strong basis for faith in him. Again and again he had made known his might in miraculous deliverances during their days of travel from Egypt. But they simply hardened their hearts in unbelief.

Lack of faith in God is no little offense against him. He has a right to our unquestioning belief and immediate obedience. Somehow we have come to regard it as a special favor toward God if we believe him, when the fact is that unbelief in such a God is definitely and obviously sin.

IV. There is a Reward for Courageous Living (v. 24).

God is looking for men of faith. All through Scripture we find the Lord coming magnificently to the help and blessing of the one who will believe him.

Caleb and Joshua were brought into the land, preserved through all of Israel's wandering, and kept in vigor even to old age in order to enjoy the promised possession (see Josh. 1:6-9; 14:10-12).

Caleb is an example of what courage, faith, self-control—yes, discipline, can do for a man. We need men and women—yes, young men and women with the spirit of Caleb. Social customs of our day encourage self-indulgence. Drinking is on the increase. Moral standards are low and seem to be getting lower.

What shall we do? Teach our young men and women to have faith in God and to discipline their lives in accordance with his word, so that they may be set free for courageous and useful living.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging headache, persistent dizziness, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

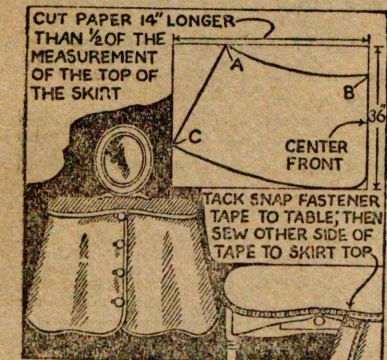

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nationwide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

A Flared Skirt for Your Dressing Table

HOW to cut a flared dressing table skirt without fullness at the top, is something worth knowing. You may be making a smartly tailored affair of white pique with pink bindings and buttons, like the one shown here; or an under lining for a full skirt of transparent material.

The diagram shows how to make a pattern for half of the skirt. The center front may be placed on a fold of the goods in cutting if there is no front opening. Cut the paper by the dimensions in the diagram. Mark point A in 14-inches from the upper left corner. Measure up from the lower right corner a distance equaling the length of the skirt from A to the left edge of the paper and mark point C. Connect these points with lines drawn, as shown.

Pacific Ocean Is Biggest And Has Greatest Depth

Pacific distances are fabulous. The world's greatest ocean occupies more space than all the lands on the globe. It would hold two Atlantics and still have room for a few Mediterraneans. More than half of all the world's water is in the Pacific. Its greatest north-south dimension is 9,300 miles, and its greatest width 10,300, writes W. Price, in "Japan's Islands of Mystery."

The sun takes ten hours to cross it—nearly half its circle round the globe. No other ocean plumbs such depths. Its floor is a third deeper on the average than the Atlantic. A chasm off the Philippine east coast showed a depth of more than 35,000 feet.

AN INNER SANCTUM MYSTERY
STARRING ARAB AND ANDY BLAKE WNU FEATURES

THE STORY THUS FAR: Lt. Andy Blake and his wife, Arab, discovered evidence of a spy ring headed by a Mr. Jones. Followed to Andy's house by Jones' gang, Arab was taken prisoner. Andy escaped. After reporting to the army, he set out to find the gang. He was taken by two of them to the Jersey coast and in crossing to a small island managed to upset the boat. He swam ashore entered the house and found Paula. After turning Paula loose, he was captured and tied up. Arab came into the room and was also tied to a chair. Jones then explained that they were leaving that night by submarine for Germany. He said Arab could go along if they would furnish certain information.

CHAPTER XVII

"We may take her and the lieutenant. We were discussing it before you came back."

Arab looked at me inquiringly, and I explained, "We got an offer. An all-expense trip to Germany. See the ruins of Cologne and Essen. See the Herrenvolk in their native air-raid shelters. Watch the bombs go by."

"It sounds awfully attractive, darling."

The fat man said, "You may stay here if you insist. It can be arranged." He walked over toward us and began wiping invisible smears from the slide of his automatic.

"He seems to have a gun," Arab said.

"He'd better be careful playing with it. People get hurt that way."

"Do I get the idea," Arab said, "that there's a price on this trip to Germany? Let's wait and go free with the army."

"There's a price. I think the trip is selling for a secondhand military secret. Got any on you?"

"I had one a minute ago, Andy. Oh, yes. That new rifle they invented up in Pennsylvania."

The fat man crooned, "That is sensible. Tell me about the new rifle."

"It's wonderful," Arab said. "It can knock out a squirrel's eye at a hundred paces. It means curtains for the Iroquois and Mohawks."

"Iroquois? Mohawks? I do not understand."

I explained politely, "Her military secret is a bit old. Two hundred years old, as a matter of fact. I'm afraid she's talking about the Pennsylvania long rifle, sometimes mislabeled the Kentucky rifle."

"It will," Arab said firmly, "make the smooth-bore musket obsolete."

Light glared from the fat man's glasses. He swung his head from side to side, looking at us. "I wish to know merely little things," he said. "One could hardly call them military secrets. Little things like the operating ceiling of the B-17-E."

"Oh, that!" I said. "I don't mind telling you that." I peered around nervously, and whispered, "It's twenty-five thousand feet."

He frowned. "That does not seem to be very high."

"Well, of course, that's with a fifty-ton bomb load."

"Fifty tons! But the entire plane does not weigh that much!"

"Uh-huh. Amazing what designers can do nowadays. And as for armament... it makes me shudder to think what that baby carries. It's got turrets from the M-4 tank mounted all over it, and... and that thing sticking out of its nose—whew!"

"What thing do you mean?"

"Lean closer," I said. "I hate to say it right out loud." He bent over me, and I said, "It's a blow gun!"

He jerked back. "A blow gun!"

"Yop. We got the Jivaro Indians in South America turning them out on an assembly line. You blow tiny bamboo arrows through it. When one of those things connects with a guy, it's taps."

Joey said wearily, "He's givin' you the business, Chief. Should I work over him some?"

"No. We will take them, anyway, if there is room. It is always possible to teach people manners."

He placed his foot carefully on my bare toes, shifted his weight onto them, and turned slowly. The sand on his shoe ground into flesh. Pain scorched my body. I locked my jaw muscles and tried to pretend that the feet were miles away and didn't belong to me. The pressure stopped finally. I wiggled my toes. They moved and throbbed. No bones were broken.

"Would you like another lesson?" the fat man asked.

"Let's sit this one out," I said. "You need dancing lessons before you have another waltz with me."

"He sounds tough but he ain't," Joey said.

"Try it on Joey," I said. "I bet he'd bawl."

"We have other work to do now," the fat man said. "It is time for the contact. Joey, turn out the lights and raise the window shades."

The room blacked out. Joey felt his way past me, jabbing an elbow into my face. He raised the shades. The windows were wide and deep; the Atlantic, curving out to its distant horizon, filled the room with a misty silver glow. A moon swung low in the sky and inlaid the waves with chromium patterns.

If everything clicked for our side, somewhere off Gibraltar the convoys would meet other task forces from English ports. A thousand ships would blast through scattered U-boats and spill a tidal wave of steel and flame onto the beaches of North Africa. But if the subs were massed and waiting off Gibraltar...

The fat man might have been reading my thoughts. "It is fortunate that a contact is scheduled for tonight," he said. "The troop ships cannot be far at sea. There will be ample time to prepare."

I said, "What you Nazis better prepare is to duck."

"I think not, Lieutenant, what is your estimate of the crossing time? Seven days? Nine days?"

"Not that long. We got a secret new outboard motor we hook on back of the ships. Doubles their speed."

That was on the feeble side, and he didn't bother to answer. He was busy setting up a tripod, topped by oversize binoculars. He took a compass bearing, adjusted the binoculars south-southeast. I stared hard across the glimmer of waves. Nothing showed. Of course the sub might be lying well out, decks awash.

I wondered how they made the contact. Plain Mr. Jones hadn't touched the short-wave set, so it must be by visual signal. I tried not to breathe fast. The Sea Frontier and Defense Command boys were waiting for something like that.

Arab whispered, "Andy, is a destroyer really out there?"

"He says so," I said. "But I think he's just making it look tough so he can yell for a lot more credit. Listen, Chief, if you get destroyer fever, how will we board your sub?"

"First," the fat man said, "I will make my report, in case of accidents. Then, if everything is safe, I will have them send in a rubber boat. If your destroyer stays around, I will send its position and we will see what the new torpedoes do to old warships."

"We'll never get aboard if there's a torpedoing."

"Oh, yes. It will be easier. If the ocean is filled with survivors, who would suspect a rubber boat of carrying enemies? Who... ah!"

He had a contact. His right index finger tapped a key. It was frightening. No flashes. No crackle of electricity. Nothing to see or hear at all... but you could imagine the silent broken streaks of invisible light beaming out to sea, reflecting down through the prisms of a periscope, coming out as dots and dashes from a photoelectric cell.

There ought to be some way to stop him. Some way to take his strength and turn it against him. The way he liked to do with others. There ought to be—

I laughed. I put everything into it. It had to be good enough to worry him, to start him on the way to one of his hysterical spells. I had seen him that way twice: once tonight when Joey hadn't flattered him fast enough, and once in the garden of the house on Q Street when I had hinted that Renee wouldn't be out with him by choice. He seemed to go into those mad spells when he suspected that somebody was sneering at him, when somebody hinted that he was ugly or stupid or weak. He needed flattery the way some people crave dope. Tonight he had a chance to become a great man in Germany. He would turn insane and deadly if anyone tried to rob him of that. And so I laughed. Laughed while my throat ached and sweat picked my face.

He turned from the tripod. "What is it?" he snapped. "Why do you laugh?"

"I snickered. 'Do you know what kind of decoration you're going to get?'"

He moved toward me. Pudgy white fingers squirmed like tentacles. "Yes," he said. "I will be given the Knight's Cross with swords and oak leaves." His voice lifted half an octave. "You think I will not get it? You think the work does not demand it?"

"Oh, sure, sure. The work demands it. But you won't get the Knight's Cross. You'll—"

The fingers coiled at my throat. "Go on, choke me," I yelled. "That won't change things! The sub commander will get the Knight's Cross! You know what cross you'll get? Do you know? Do you?"

Arab's voice cut in, "The double-cross." Some day I was going to buy her a store full of hats.

The fingers loosened. "What do you mean?" he said thickly.

I talked fast. "You got big stuff here. You hand it to the sub commander. Where's your receipt? What's to stop him from taking all the credit? You work for Himmler. Who does he work for? Not Himmler. Himmler doesn't have the subs. Who does he work for?"

"Canaris," the fat man muttered. "Admiral Canaris. German Naval Intelligence."

His hands went to work on a phantom neck. "The High Command runs it," he choked. "They hate us."

"Sure. You think that sub commander's gonna give you and Himmler a buildup? Like hell. Naval Intelligence will steal the credit. They'll say they sweated the dope from the survivors of torpedoed ships." I made my voice low and nasty. "And do you know what happens to you? I know."

His body was twitching, jerking. "What happens?" His voice skirled up suddenly. "What happens?"

What the fat man and the sub commander could see, our boys could spot just as well. And there had to be destroyers and corvettes off the coast, there had to be.

Chills whisked across my skin. I shut my eyes, opened them after a few seconds. This time the shadow hadn't vanished. It was still there, far off in the moon lane, east by north of the house. A black sliver of steel was easing across the chromium-tipped waves. It carried four tilted funnels. That meant only one thing. I had seen those babies back in peacetime, back in Philadelphia. They had lain moored in deserted red-painted rows in the back channel of the Navy Yard. You would drive past them and wonder why they hadn't been scrapped. That was back in the thirties when nobody would ever dare attack America. Why didn't they scrap those tin-can destroyers from the World War?

One of them was out there now snuffling slowly through the waves. Saving her strength, like an old bird dog. She must be four miles north of the spot where the fat man expected his sub contact. I tried to pray her south. I wanted her in position to make a short fast run when the light signals began flickering. If she had to open up a long way off, the sub would very likely pick up the beat of her screws in time to get away. And the fat man could do his damage in five words: Invasion headed French North Africa.

Apparently nobody else had seen the destroyer; they were all peering south-southeast. I pretended to imitate them while watching the four-piper from the corners of my eyes. The silhouette narrowed as she went into a turn—a turn which would take her farther away. I saw the rope deeper into my wrists, trying to get free. The tin can turned slowly, relentlessly north. She steadied on the new course. Sweat stung my eyes. By the time I blinked them clear the moon lane was empty.

The fat man stooped, fumbled with a floor plug. "You may be interested in this," he said. "It is a nice application of a well-known principle."

I thought: go on, baby, show off. You'll still be in trouble when you start flashing lights.

"It is," he said, "the same principle by which doors open when a beam of light is broken."

I began to feel sick. He wasn't playing with oversize binoculars, after all. It was something tricky.

"We have here," he said, patting the gadget on his tripod, "a piece of signaling equipment." He chuckled. "The lieutenant has been hoping for a wild display of lights. He has been hoping that I would not see the destroyer to the northeast. You could have your whole two-ocean Navy out there and it would not matter. It is almost impossible to spot a motionless periscope at night—and that is all that our friends on the U-boat will show until everything is safe."

I said hoarsely, "After this buildup it better be good. That gadget ought to produce black magic, at least."

"It does," he said. "It produces a beam of black light... light beyond the visible spectrum. To send signals one merely interrupts the beam. Nothing can see the beam except a photoelectric cell through a lens fitted with the proper filter. One set is here, one set on the U-boat." He held his watch into the moonlight and peered at it. "Eleven-fifteen. The contact spot is carefully charted. Our friends will be cruising there at periscope depth. We will not be interrupted." He bent, peered through the eyepiece of the signal set.

Arab whispered, "Andy, is a destroyer really out there?"

"He says so," I said. "But I think he's just making it look tough so he can yell for a lot more credit. Listen, Chief, if you get destroyer fever, how will we board your sub?"

Veterans' SERVICE BUREAU

EDITOR'S NOTE: This newspaper, through special arrangement with the Washington Bureau of Western Newspaper Union at 1616 Eye Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., is able to bring readers this weekly column on problems of the veteran and serviceman and his family. Questions may be addressed to the above Bureau and they will be answered in a subsequent column. No replies can be made direct by mail, but only in the column which will appear in this newspaper regularly.

Speed of Discharge

Apropos of the confusion existing in the minds of both members of the armed services and civilians, Gen. Dwight Eisenhower testified before a joint meeting of the house and senate January 15 that all men in the army with two years' service would be on their way out by July 1, 1946. He further said that veterans and civilians who are now complaining have no reason to expect discharge for another three or four months under the original demobilization program set up by Gen. George C. Marshall as chief of staff.

Although further cut in number of points eligible for discharge may come within the next few weeks, as of January 15, discharge points necessary for the army remains at 50 for enlisted men and 70 for officers.

General MacArthur has announced that the point score for men under his command is 48 for enlisted men and 68 for officers. These figures apply to all who had earned that number of points as of September 2, 1945. It is pointed out at the war department that each theater commander has the authority to reduce the point score for discharge.

War department heads agree that discharge of veterans is proceeding at a rate that is too fast for the efficiency and safety of the army and replacements are not coming fast enough although training of replacements has been cut from 17 to 13 weeks.

Questions and Answers

Q. I was discharged from the regular army in January, 1944, and now I would like to put in another hitch, but because of a paragraph in my discharge papers am unable to. It reads: "Is not recommended for re-enlistment, induction or re-induction. Sec. 8, AR 615-360." How can I have this fixed and re-enlist?—Reader, Albertville, Ala.

A. Section 8 of army regulations to which you refer means that you are unfit for military service and will not be accepted, according to the war department.

Q. What does a man in the army get discharge points for? If married, but no children, is the wife considered a dependent? Are any discharge points allowed for her?—Mrs. B. J. D., Mt. Sterling, Ohio.

A. Discharge points in the army are allowed for service in this country and overseas, for minor children (not more than three) and for decorations or battle stars. A wife is considered a dependent in so far as family allowance is concerned, but not for discharge points.

Q. I heard any one in service under 20 years of age can get a discharge to attend school even if he hasn't enough points. Is this true?—Mrs. O. S., Lewistown, Ill.

A. No discharge is granted to permit a man under age to attend school. He may go to school at the army institute in this country or to any one of the courses which have been instituted overseas.

Q. We are the parents of two boys who served their country, one three years in the army, the other almost four years in the navy. The father is 55 and mother, 49. We do not own any property and live in one of the boy's home. The father worked at a saw mill and made 50 cents an hour. When the boys went into service, we thought if we could get by without starving we would not draw from the government on them. We had one single girl in school and one 13-year-old boy in school. We did get by and did not starve, but it took every cent to do so and keep the two in school. Would it have been dishonest to have drawn on one of the boys? If not, could we get it yet? They are both honorably discharged.—Mr. and Mrs. P. H., Valley Head, Ala.

A. It certainly would not have been dishonest for you to take an allotment from one or both of your boys for the allotment would have been entirely voluntary on their part out of their pay and the amount they voluntarily set aside for you would have been matched by the government. You cannot get it now, since they are discharged.

Q. My husband had war bond allotments taken from his pay which he received when he was discharged at Indiantown Gap, Pa. Would like to know where to write, since he has not received his bonds.—Mrs. W. W. R., Millmont, Pa.

A. Write to the war bond division, U. S. Army, 4300 Goodfellow blvd., St. Louis 20, Mo.

Q. If a man has enough points for discharge

St. George Ladies Society
The regular meeting of the St. George Ladies Society was held Tuesday evening, February 5, 1946 in the church house. At the beginning of the meeting Mrs. Jack Panozzo presented the society with a lovely new gavel which had been made by her husband. Mrs. Panozzo then reported on the progress of the Fancy Goods Booth which is being featured at the St. George Men's Club dance to be held Saturday night, March 2, 1946 in Saenger hall. Some of the very lovely aprons, all hand made, were displayed and very nearly disappeared as each of the ladies picked out one which had caught her eye and which she hoped to make her own. Also displayed was an exquisite table runner which had been crocheted by Mrs. R. Bachara. We are going to have a hat designed and executed by Mrs. Richard Ryan of Tinley Park and some hand made lamp shades, the work of Mrs. Carl Gallina. An announcement was also made that a "Mix Master" would be awarded as a door prize on that same night.

When making the returns on the books for the hand crocheted lace table cloth to be awarded that night, please forward them and the money to Mrs. Mae Panozzo who has consented to be responsible for them.

Mrs. Marie Mason reported on the refreshment booth. She is going ahead with the plans for the barbecue, (she still won't tell the recipe for that delicious sauce) and will also have biscuits made by Mrs. Frank Becker and doughnuts made by Mrs. Evelyn Cupp to dunk with your coffee.

Further information on the new badges which the ladies will wear in group church gatherings was given by Miss Lottie Arendt. Medals are being purchased to place on these badges so that the finished badge will be obfuse with a silver medal superimposed on them. We wish to thank Miss Arendt for the work she has done on these badges. They will be a decided addition to our gatherings.

Plans are under consideration for a luncheon to be held in May in conjunction with a style show. We are all anxiously looking forward to both. It will be great fun to get together over a delicious luncheon and watch mannequins parading the latest styles for our consideration.

We were very gratified to meet some new members and to see so many of the old members with us again. The year ahead of all of us will be a busy one, but it will be fun when we all share as we are doing now.

At the close of the meeting, individual cakes with decorative icing and coffee was served by the hostesses, Mrs. Evelyn Cupp and Mrs. Ethelyn Mehren, and Happy Birthday was sung to Mrs. Pauline Snyder whose feastday it was.

The next regular meeting of the St. George Ladies Sodality will be held Tuesday evening, March 5 at 8 pm. Won't you join us and bring a neighbor?

TINLEY BOY SERVED ON THE USS BLACK HAWK

Aboard the USS Black Hawk—Julius Joseph Weinert, S1-c, USNR, 149th St. and 53rd Ave., Tinley Park served aboard this veteran repair ship during part of her war cruise in the Pacific.

The vessel, now anchored in Shanghai as a repair ship, served 19 years in this Asiatic station, from 1922 to 1941, in the ports of China and the Philippines.

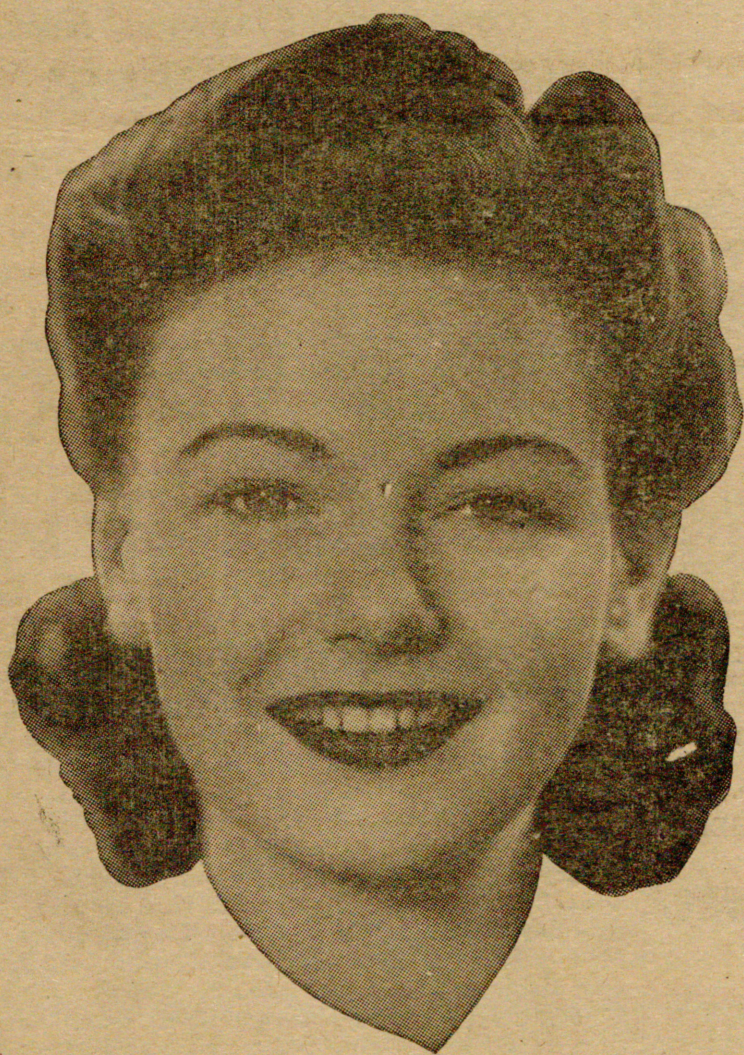

The Black Hawk was steaming thru the Macassar Straits and the Java Sea to a rendezvous with her destroyer squadron when the war broke out in December 1941. Since that time, she has made two short trips to the United States, her only trips in 27 years, to this country.

The ship operated in all sectors of the Pacific during the war, doing repair work and acting as a tender.

The Black Hawk was active in fighting German submarines in World War 1, operating in the Skagerrak area and the North Sea, and laying down a mine barrage between the Orkney Islands and Norway, shortly after her commissioning in 1918.

Day in, day out, Gas protects health, costs only pennies!

"Our food is more healthful..."

tastes much better—cooked on a modern GAS range.

"Dan's work is strenuous and the children play hard all day. My, how tired and hungry they are when they come home at night. But somehow—I noticed they stayed tired even after dinner was over. Something wrong? Well, I consulted a friendly Public Service Home Economist—and she gave me some cooking hints that answered my problem perfectly."

Foods have to be healthful as well as good! And that's where your modern GAS range steps in to help you out. The foods you buy probably have all the vitamins and minerals your family needs. But the only vitamins that count are the ones that reach your table.

"So I got busy—took advantage of the help my GAS range could give. Now I seal vitamins and minerals in foods instead of pouring them down the drain. I steam fruits and vegetables in small amounts of water. I also use low temperature oven cooking to preserve the natural vitamins in my meats. I never stir foods or lift saucepan covers to let vitamins escape in steam.

"And what a difference I notice in my family! They've lost that dragged-out-after-dinner feeling. My GAS range sees that they get all the benefits of health-building vitamins. So take a tip from one who knows... be sure you choose a vitamin-thrifty GAS range when once again they're available to you. Then find out for yourself what a top-notch job of cooking your GAS range will do for you, too!"

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of my beloved husband, Harold W. Kay killed in action February 8th, 1945 in Bulate, Luzon.

When I am old and very gray, And hours matter not, I hope that I shall always say, That nothing is forgot.

I hope I shall remember all, The songs of long ago, And somewhere in my heart recall, The joys I used to know. The friends who came to comfort me, When I indulged in tears, And left a kindly memory, To carry through the years.

The smiling lips, the laughing eyes, The letters in the mail, The stars of silver in the skies, And all the moon beams pale, But whether any other view, Will draw me to the past, I know I shall remember you, However long I last.

SERVICE MEN'S LETTERS

Mrs. H. Kruspe, Chairman
Japan, Dec. 12, 1945

Dear Mrs. Kruspe:

Received your package today and want to thank you and the American Legion Auxiliary. It was a swell assortment of gifts and I have the Christmas tree set up on our desk, here in the shop. Our Batt. has moved into another area combining with the other four SeaBee outfits that have arrived here. This section, used to be a Seaplane Base and the buildings are all large. We live in Quanset huts. Another lad and I have our motor and refrigerator shop in a Jap concrete cave. We've put in a floor, electric power and stoves so it really is OK. Going to go out and chop one of these Jap pine trees for our Christmas tree, to make it a little more like home, in our shop. I guess every one has his own opinion of the Japs and like most boys here, we have ours. I guess it isn't very civilized to say, but it's too bad they didn't completely wipe out the Japanese Empire with Atomic bombs. These people can't be trusted and live like the lowest form of animal life. Family life is something unheard of and the women do most of the work, while the men set and loaf.

I hope we can finish our projects here soon, so we can move elsewhere, preferably USA.

Once again thank you and Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Most sincerely,

Ralph Jorgensen

IF YOU look over the list of all the leading ball players for the last 30 years, including baseball's hall of fame at Cooperstown, you'll find that over 90 per cent of them came from cities and towns under 10,000.

Cobb, Speaker, Jackson, Mathewson, Alexander, Cy Young, Johnson, Grove, Sisler, Eddie Collins, Hornsby, Fox, LaJoie, Home Run Baker, Wagner, Bob Feller, the Cooper brothers, Keller, Dickey, the DiMaggios, Hartnett, the Deans, Carl Hubbell, and so on came to their fame from isolated and unknown spots on the map. Such instances run into the hundreds. New York's main contributions have been Gehrig, Greenberg and Frish. Chicago has turned out a few stars, including Phil Cavarretta. Baltimore gave the game Babe Ruth. But New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston and other crowded cities in proportion have lagged far behind.

In towns running from 1,000 to 10,000 population there is always room for a ball field. In these "Sweet Auburns, loveliest villages of the plains," there is space in which kids can hit, run, throw and slide. They can play the game up to the hilt. But in a city such as New York, you can see thousands trying to play on crowded streets as cars come through to drive them back to the sidewalks. Ever try to slide over cobblestones while eluding a fast-moving automobile?

Few Stars From Cities

Take a look at the now famous Cardinal roster, which embraces at least 30 stars. At least 95 per cent of these came along and up from places you never heard about. If these players had been born in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, etc., possibly two or three would have made the big leagues. That is the way the percentage runs. Gehrig and Frisch came along through Columbia and Fordham. But few street kids have a chance to get any college course and find a ball field where they can develop. Baseball's hall of fame, now and in years to come, would be extremely thin if it had to look to the crowded, thoughtless larger cities for its talent. If there isn't enough within these cities, there is always space enough outside — and there are still busses running and there will soon be motor cars available.

Complaining about juvenile delinquency, youthful crime, is a waste of time. The responsibility belongs to older people who through sport and the full support of so many hard working organizations can change the entire picture in a few years.

Athletes and Condition

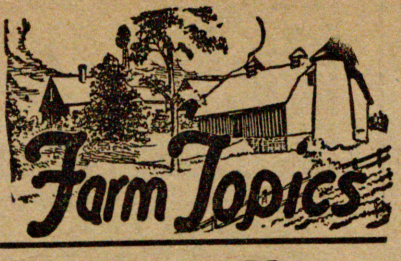

What group of athletes keep in better physical condition—or worst physical condition, so far as professional sport is concerned?

At a recent gabbing session we ran into a number of coaches, assistant coaches, trainers and assistant trainers who know their way around, who have been in charge of various sports for many years. It was their belief that professional football players and professional tournament golfers on the average were in better physical condition than any other group, and that professional baseball players trailed the list.

This statement will bring a loud and lusty squawk from many ball players, but it happens to carry more than a mere shade of truth. Anyway, the coaches and trainers who felt this way about it should know what they are talking about.

"This, of course, doesn't include all ball players," one trainer said. "But it includes too many of them. Most of them couldn't do half the job a pro football player has to face. Watch most of them hit a triple and you'll find them puffing at third base and that's less than 100 yards. They don't turn in enough road work to build up their legs. A pro baseball player should last far longer than a pro football player, considering the punishment the footballer has to take, but few of them do. Last season the New York Giants had Mel Hein, Herber and Ken Strong, each with nearly 20 years of football behind him. There have been many others such as Hutson with 10 or 12 years already cashed in.

"For example I see where Detroit's Tigers this season have 43 exhibition games. This means a total of 197 contests from March to October, a long march that demands the best sort of physical shape. Many of them will be ready for this endurance test. But quite a lot won't be, unless they make a far harder effort to get in shape and keep in shape than so many have made in the past. Those fellows heading south early are the smart ones. This will be the toughest season any of them will have to tackle."

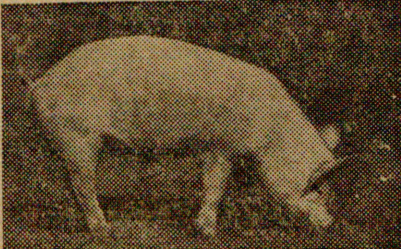

Hog Influenza May Cause Serious Loss

Prevention Should Be Practiced in Hog Lot

Earthworms, usually found in large numbers around old straw stacks, often contain the lungworm which in turn is the carrier of hog influenza. With the arrival of cold damp weather, swine raisers can look for cases of hog flu.

Proper housing including draft-free ventilation and adequate bedding are necessary if hog flu is to be controlled or prevented. They should be kept from undue exposure. Hogs need dry, warm quarters free from drafts.

A healthy, well-housed and fed hog will not be in danger of contracting flu.

As the disease is contagious, any sick animals should be separated if part of the drove comes down with the flu. Special care and nursing should be given to the brood sows.

By proper housing, feeding and management, little trouble should be met with in the prevention of flu. It is taken for granted that the hog drove has been bred for constitutional vigor. A strong hog well managed will never prove a disease problem.

Chemical Effective As Weed Eradicator

The chemical 2, 4-D (chemically dichlorophenoxyacetic), has proven effective in killing dandelions, plantains, and many other weeds with little difficulty or expense by spraying.

Detail work is being conducted at Mississippi state agricultural experiment station by Prof. O. A. Leonard and F. H. Herzer. Progress report indicates that the chemical acts as a plant hormone. When used in high concentrations, the plant dies under proper conditions.

Left, untreated bitterweed; right, bitterweed treated with 2, 4-D. This method of treatment has proven valuable in many ways.

The USDA reports that a solution of 2, 4-D containing as little as 1½ ounces of the chemical in 10 gallons of water will be deadly to many species of broad-leaved plants including dandelion, plantain, pennywort, Japanese honeysuckle, annual morning-glory, daisy, chickweed, winter cress, ragweed, pigweed, burdock, wild mustard and annual sow thistle.

Agriculture In the News

DDT in Paint

By W. J. DRYDEN

A wall paint blended with DDT under a new process has proved an effective "insect control" as long as 18 months after a single application. This paint, "Superior 365," contains 200 milligrams of DDT for each square foot of painted surface and has proven effective against 132 varieties of insects.

Tests have shown that seven seconds contact, on DDT paint, for flies first paralyzes and then kills the insects in 30 minutes. The paint is harmless to humans, and is especially effective in milk houses as well as other farm buildings.

Superphosphate Needed

Five to six tons of animal manure reinforced with one-half bag of superphosphate per ton of manure produces as much increase in yield as does 10 to 12 tons per acre without the superphosphate.

The superphosphate can be scattered over the top of the load of manure before it goes to the field. Or it can be applied in the barn or sheds. When used in barns or sheds, it helps to keep down odors as well as reduce nitrogen loss.

Things You Knew All Along:

(But which dopey me just found out.)

President Truman is not ill, but the Army has completed plans for a Presidential suite at Walter Reed Hospital. FDR and other gov't officials invariably used the Naval Hospital at Bethesda, Md. Since Mr. Truman served in the Army (in World War I), the Army has no intention of turning over its prize alumnus to Naval medics, should he need a doctor. (Mr. Truman discovered that trying to be a middle-of-the-roader means you get slugged from both sides.)

In Berlin the Nazis (civilians, too) gather in front of U. S. PXs and beg the Yanks "for chawklott, choon-gum" and other goodies, even ciggies. The Americans often share with them. When the Nazis are a safe distance away they make "cracks," thumb to nose, etc. Nurses just back also report the Nazis practically dare the Yanks to hit them with their vehicles or bikes as they cross streets. But when they see the Russians coming in cars, they flee. Because the Russkys run over them! (They respect THEM!)

"Fala at Hyde Park" is the title of an unusual short released on FDR's birthday, Jan. 30th.

Six thousand of the 82nd Airborne Division (who marched up Fifth Ave. the other day) will re-enlist.

During the war ammunition was manufactured in the House of Lords, London.

Believe it or not, but there is even a lobby in Washington to prevent the gov't from establishing national cemeteries in each State. (Cemetery associations are behind the lobby.)

Telephones Immaculate (The Hygienic Phone Service of N. Y., Inc.) is a service which disinfects your phones twice weekly. A New Yorker borrowed the idea from London, which is supposed to be decades behind New York.

Denver has a law which prohibits anyone from photographing a woman in her bathing suit without her consent. (How about without her bathing suit?)

It's against the law in England to marry your mother-in-law.

The howl of wolves at night is really a love call.

A Marine never wears pants or carries a gun. Marines wear trousers and they never call a rifle a gun. (Such airs!)

Pawnshops use three brass balls as a sign because they were part of the coat of arms of the Medici family, the first famous pawnbrokers. (My hockshop told me.)

The moon is gradually applying brakes to the earth's spin. As a result, the day is now lengthening at the rate of one-thousandth of a second a century. (Fevvensakes!)

Napoleon invented the income tax to pay for wars.

Midtown Novelties: A noted attorney revealed this in the Blue Angel. A mother and a daughter were threatened with eviction from a 72nd St. apartment. . . . Because the neighbors complained of the girl's vocalizing. "She's always practicing!" said the landlord. . . . Their lawyer argued the owner into withdrawing the dispossession notice and warned him: "Some day you'll pay to hear her sing!" . . . They moved, anyway, because the neighbors were so mean. . . . That was 3 years ago. . . . If those neighbors do not know what became of that girl—they can pay to find out—at the Met Opera House . . . Patrice Munsell!

The Late Watch: Clark Gable's steadiest companion is Virginia Grey. The reports linking him with this and that gal are strictly "fillers." . . . Big furore in Washington over Gen. Ike's shakeup at the Pentagon. They're the lads "who flew a desk" largely because socially ambitious wives "couldn't live anywhere else." . . . Hotels will be jammed until next December without a let-up. Conventions, buyers, etc. . . . The Burke-Van Heusen score in "Nellie Bly" is rated a goody. . . . Groucho Marx's dgtr, Miriam, has switched from a news-mag (as copy gal) to an a. m. paper as cub reporter, already.

Faces About Town: Jimmy Stewart of the films being introduced to the men who erased Hiroshima and Nagasaki, in the Stork Cub section. . . . Jimmy Doolittle at Shor's in his mufli, plus discharge button in lapel. . . . Gen. Vandegrift of the Marines having his boots shined on 50th St. . . . Gertrude Hoffman, the star, another way of spelling "Big Time." . . . Eduardo Sutherland, the movie director, who has opened Hollywood's newest exclusive rendezvous. 'Lost Regiment' Of Yanks Swells Woes for Paris

AWOLs Believed Hiding in City; Hold-up Gangs Roam at Night.

PARIS. — A "lost regiment" of perhaps 2,000 men pours into the soldier-congested areas of Paris every night, swells the wave of post-war petty crime, and disappears into secret dwellings before dawn, says the Associated Press.

They are American soldiers, but they obey no orders. They are the AWOLs, and more than one-fifth of them in the European theater are believed to have drifted to Paris.

The United States army is secretive about its "absent without official leave," men, but a check of arrests by military police discloses an average of 10 AWOLs seized in Paris every day. Mostly they are caught when they commit some kind of delinquency.

They form only a part of the element responsible for the skyrocketing crime wave in Paris, and the often sensational Paris press has been careful not to place the blame either on the AWOLs, or on the American soldier stationed in Paris. Many Not Americans.

France Soir, in its account of a crime wave which has seen killings, shootings and beatings mount to 996 from January through October compared with 302 for the similar period in 1939, emphasized that thousands wearing American uniforms are not American soldiers.

The French press, when it finds it necessary to refer to Americans in its crime stories, uses the terms "men in American uniform" or "a man dressed as an American soldier."

Hold-ups in the 10-month period in Paris totaled 18,202 compared with 3,894 in 1939, and robberies 55,199 compared with 22,236.

The typical AWOL seems to get his start by simply having too good a time and overstaying his furlough. He then figures he might as well overstay it a week as a day. He may encounter a street girl. Generally she is only too glad to have a soldier boy to shelter. She takes him to her home.

Approached by Gangs.

At bars he may be approached shortly by persons offering to serve as "fences" for goods from Red Cross clubs, where he can remove clothes or loot from pockets of other soldiers in shower rooms, gyms and sleeping quarters.

Later he may join other AWOLs, and in gangs of from two to five they begin crimes of violence—hold-ups and burglaries.

A large proportion of those not caught for criminal activities are arrested because they deserted their original girl and she tipped off the police.

Mostly, however, they are caught in the act of committing crimes. About one-third of them wear French civilian clothes.

A good proportion may never be caught. They may live out their lives in France or smuggle their way back to the United States.

Anybody AWOL for more than 20 days is automatically charged with desertion, but military courts rarely convict on that charge.

Veteran Rescued From Suffocation in Boxcar

CHATTANOOGA, TENN.—Ernest Parton, 40-year-old Memphis war veteran, was rescued here recently from a sealed all-steel boxcar loaded almost to the top with corn shocks, after 60 hours of threatened suffocation without food or water. Train crewmen, who heard Parton's pounding on the roof of the car, removed him. He was admitted to a hospital, where his condition was reported as good after a hot meal.

Parton said he had been drugged and robbed of $34 and then apparently thrown into the car. He said the last thing he remembered was being with two companions in a Memphis tavern.

London Police and MPs Raid City for U. S. AWOLs

LONDON. — About 2,000 London police aided by American and British military police threw a dragnet over central London and the west end recently in a hunt for thousands of deserters believed hiding in the British capital.

Questioning all persons in theaters, dance halls, clubs, railroad and subway stations, police caught nine servicemen who were absent without leave. Hundreds of other persons unable to produce identification papers were taken to police stations for questioning.

Police officials described the raid results as "fairly satisfactory."

Boys Steal New Model Car; Find Fault With It

BOSTON, MASS. — Three teen age boys, questioned in a police line-up recently about the theft of a new model automobile from a dealer's show window, were a bit critical of the 1946 car.

"What," asked Special Officer O'Shea, "do you think of the new model?"

"Splendid," the boys replied, "but it starts to tip at 80 miles an hour on the corners."

One of the strangest creatures in nature's realm is the duck-billed platypus of Tasmania and Australia. The male is as poisonous as a snake, but it carries its fangs in its feet instead of its mouth.

The platypus has fur like a mole's, the feet and bill of a duck, lives both on land and in the water, and lays eggs yet suckles its offspring. The bill, more pliable than a duck's, is something like soft rubber.

Flying Kites

For more than two centuries, numerous villages in Japan have competed with one another each summer in making and flying giant kites, says Collier's. Not long ago, one of them, which was circular in shape and cost nearly $1,000, had an area of 3,000 square feet, weighed half a ton, was equipped with 6,200 feet of rope and required 200 men to control it in the air.

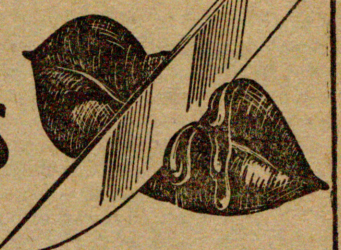

Mix This Cough Syrup at Home. Quick Relief

Easily Mixed. Needs No Cooking.

Here's an old home mixture your parents probably used. But, once tried, you'll always use it, because it gives such quick, pleasing relief for coughs due to colds.

And it's so easily mixed. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking is needed. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, if desired. Now put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (obtained from any druggist) into a pint bottle, and fill up with your syrup. This makes a full pint of truly splendid cough medicine, and gives you about four times as much for your money. It keeps perfectly, tastes fine, and lasts a long time.

ECONOMIC PROBLEMS FARMERS MAY FACE UP TO YEAR 1950

At the regular winter community meetings held by the Cook County Farm Bureau emphasis will be placed upon the probable economic conditions that farmers will face in the years up until about 1950. Farm Adviser C. A. Hughes, states "Farmers will be wise to realize that 1946 is the beginning of the post war period and it should be used as a conversion point for the changing conditions that are ahead. In these meetings we will bring to farmers the best opinions of agricultural economists as to what these conditions will be and the measures that farmers should take to most successfully meet these changed conditions. At these meetings we will have entertainment, films, doughnuts and coffee and Mr. L. A. Nordhausen of the Lake Cook Farm Supply will present plans for ventilating barns, poultry and hog houses.

These meetings are open to all farmers and we would like to have their wives, also. We are hoping to have the Walt Disney film on "Something You Didn't Eat."

The first meeting will be Friday, February 15 at the Farm Bureau Hall, Blue Island, 8 pm. The following Monday, February 18 at the Orland Park high school, Tuesday, February 19 at the Matteson Public school and Wednesday, February 20 at the Bloom Township high school. A poultry meeting with Prof. H. H. Alp of the University of Illinois will be held. All of these meetings are at 8 pm.

CHRISTIANS AND JEWS CONFERENCE FEB. 17-24

The National Conference of Christians and Jews will be observed as American Brotherhood Week, Feb. 17-24.

All citizens are called to recognize America's chances of living at peace with the rest of the world depends upon the sincerity of each individual in seeking true brotherhood among men.

Wars and all inhumanity among men would be impossible if the world were guided by a spirit of true brotherhood.

Superior Court Judge John P. McGorty is Cook county chairman for the American Brotherhood campaign, which will raise $4,000,000 to finance research and materials designed to eliminate hate, intolerance and bigotry.

Ged. B. McKibbin is Illinois state chairman for the drive. President Harry S. Truman is honorary chairman, and Harold E. Stassen is national chairman. National co-chairmen are Basil O'Connor, David O. Selznick and Henry Noble MacCracken.
